These ecological houses feature bioclimatic architecture and low-energy consumption equipment, including green roofs, photovoltaic panels, electric car charging points, gardens that require no irrigation, rainwater harvesting tanks, and an arothermal system for heating and hot water production. The cozy interiors prominently feature wood and are designed to clearly separate relaxation areas from active spaces. The upper floor houses 3 bedrooms, while the ground floor includes a kitchen and living-dining room. These indoor spaces are complemented by outdoor areas, usable almost year-round thanks to the Mediterranean climate, including a porch with a dining area, a terrace, a swimming pool, and gardens with native plants that connect the house with nature. Located in the municipality of Llibert, these homes set a new standard for sustainable development on the northern Costa Blanca. They emphasize respect for the environment, local cultural values, community well-being, and a healthy lifestyle in close contact with nature. The architecture incorporates earthy colors, dry stone walls, and local vegetation, blending seamlessly into the valley landscape. Designed for low energy consumption, the houses are equipped with arothermal heating and hot water production, underfloor heating, photovoltaic panels, an electric ventilation system, and home automation. Each home includes terraced gardens with traditional stone walls and native plants, and comes with an electric car or two electric bicycles for easy mobility around the development. The villas, built on plots ranging from 400 to 700 square meters, are spread over two floors. Each detached villa offers 3 bedrooms and two interior layout options, along with a private pool, parking, storage room, and spectacular views of the vineyards and nature.
