Sisli is a premium residential complex located in the heart of Istanbul. It occupies 241,000 sq.m. and includes two blocks of residential apartments plus one set aside for office space. An objective bonus of the complex is a well-developed infrastructure. In the immediate vicinity are metro stations (Mecidiyekoy and Sisli), the Technical University, as well as a park, a stadium and several hospitals, including the private clinic Ozel Kadioglu Hastanesi. It is also easy to get from Sisli to the largest and most impressive Turkish palace, Dolmabahce. The internal infrastructure has many leisure areas and locations designed for cultural recreation. The complex features an outdoor semi-Olympic pool and a fitness club. Children will be interested in spending time in a special entertainment center with game consoles, while adults can visit the Mecidiyekoy Theater, the library or watch a movie in any of the nine cinema halls. Sisli has parking, post office and cleaning services. In the middle of the area is a town square covering an area of 10,000 sq.m. It communicates with the city and is a recreation area for residents with cafes and restaurants. Both residential blocks in the complex have 42 floors each and differ from each other in the design of the premises. The first South Tower is ideal for a quiet family life, and the East Tower, which includes loft-style apartments with panoramic windows, will be more interesting for creative and free young people. The area of apartments varies in the range of 100-425 sq.m. The complex is equipped with modern technical equipment. A comfortable atmosphere for residents is provided by the central heating system, air conditioning and "smart home". Sisli has 24-hour security, as well as all the necessary maintenance and emergency services. Additionally, a special earthquake warning system operates on the territory, and video surveillance cameras operate.
